How long this will last will depend upon the question whether or no the new Chinese treaty of immigration is ratified between now and March 4th next. If not the senate may remain there until the middle of May, as the Chinese matter has now reached that shape that neither party cares to ignore it. The report of the commissioner of internal revenue has gone to the public printer. When the estimates for the fiscal year were only $115,000,000 they actually reached $123,982,000. In addition to this the net increase in collections of the four months ending October 31 was $3,863,000.

This is fairly considered as an indication of a very marked revival in business. This of a very marked revival in business. This increase has been steady since July I.

One of the most interesting portions of the report will be that devoted to the efforts to suppress illicit distilling at the south. Excellent progress has been made during the year, and recently there has been a reassignment of special agents for this work, and a re-enforcing of the parties now stationed in the mountain regions of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee. In large portions of the latter state illicit distillation has been entirely rooted out. The commissioner thinks that by the close of this administration he can report the work nearly com-

New York, December 1.—A special from Boston states that a heavy snow storm is prevailing throughout New England, three inches of snow having fallen here. The snow was about four inches deep at Catskill this morning, and the ice blockade is almost impassible.

Roundout, December 1.—A beating northeast snow storm is raging in this city and back country. The snow is now eight inches deep. This storm, it is thought, will end all river navigation between the Catskill and Hudson and this port. It probably will not make much difference with the river from Roundout to New York.

Cross-examined: It was on the second Sunday in July, 1877. I remember it because it was the last time I ever saw her. I told several that I was there on that day. I don't know who I told first. It had been in my mind ever since I was there. I was not a witness in the trial of W. P. Weaver. He is my uncle. The church we' went to is Rehobeth church; it is not far from Jolly's house; we walked over there; I forget who preached; some one preached; I don't remember the day of the month; it was in July, 1877. I had told her I would be back the next Sunday; I always told her when I was coming. I went into the house the day Jolly told me she was gone; I mailed the letters at Stone Mountain. She was in good health; weighed about 175 pounds. I think she was about twenty years old. She worked for Jolly in the field.

Mrs. L. A. Veal. Victoria Norris was my sister. She was seventeen years old at the time she disappeared. She was six feet, one and three-fourth inches high. I have two other sisters. One lives three miles from Stone Mountain; the other lives with me. My sister Victoria lived at James Jolly's. She went there in February and lived there until the next July year. I did not know she was gone for a month after she left. I saw my sister in May of 1677. She went to Jolly's to get work. He said he would take her as one of the family. Jolly and his wife came to my house. They had two letters; one of the letters was from Henry Jones. I told Jolly it was strange Henry Jones knew my husband so well when my husband did not know him. Jolly said he told Henry Jones to write the letters. I told him I would go with him to Atlanta to see the Henry Jones who wrote the letters. He said he was not there as he had moved. He turned pale and walked out. I went to Morgan county last Christmas to see my l know of the trunk. I had one just like it. There were two locks on each of the trunks. I have seen the locks that were found in the burnt-heap. (Witness shown lock.) This looks like the lock. I have tried the key. The same key that fitted my trunk lock fitted that of my sister's trunk. My sister had some jewelry—a breastpin and two rings. The pin was sent to me in a letter which came from Mississippi. I have not seen Jolly since his arrest until this morning. She had some black sleeve buttons, I think. I had a conversation with Jolly about her leaving. He said they left before day, and had started to Atlanta. He said the horse got sick. She told him she had started and would go on if she had to walk. Jolly says he went back and put up the horse and then went nearly to Clarkston with go on it she had to walk. Jolly says he went back and put up the horse and then went nearly to Clarkston with her. She was to go on to Decatur and stop with Mr. H. C. Jones. Cross-examined: It was two years before I went to Jolly's house. It was about the 30th of August that I heard my sister was not at Jolly's. I tried the key in the lock at Clarkston. It was a key that unlocked both trunks. It fit the lock that was found in

It is said the bigamy and grand larceny. It is said she has married fourteen Germans in Newark, N. J., and elsewhere for the simple purpose of robbing them. She will be taken to Newark for trial.

New YORK, December 1.—William E. Brockway, a notorious forger, was released to-day in compliance with the following proposition made by his counsel and accepted by the government: That the counterfeit plates of various denominations and other material used in connection therewith should be delivered to the government, In consideration of which Brockway should appear before the United States complissioner, and with the understanding that he should not be punished for past offenses. Brockway appeared and plead guilty to two indictments, either of which was sufficient to place him in the penitentiary; but according to agreement if no more of sufficient to place him in the pentientiary; but according to sgreement if no more offenses are committed he will not be disturbed He will, however, be kept under surveillance. The plates surrendered are national bank note and government bond plates. Fibre, paper and other implements were also given up.

THE CONSTITUTION, Intefed as second-class matter in the Atlan post-office. December 11, 1879.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 2, 1880.

THE election being over Mr. Sherma cannot afford to reduce the public debt at the rate of ten million dollars a month. He comes down now to the regular pace, or something over three million a month, and the peculiar system of bookkeeping and delayed payments is abolished.

Corron is and must ever be the bas of Atlanta's prosperity, and the project of a great cotton fair in this city next fall should, therefore, enlist the support of every enterprising citizen. The meeting at the cotton exchange this afternoon at four o'clock should be largely attended. The place is capacious, and there will be for all who come. Atlanta can have the fair if she will take hold of the matter, and the meeting to-day should be an evidence of her public spirit.

THE Indiana and North Carolina blun ders, by which the will of the people in jeoparded, is now capped by a law-makis reduced by this mistake to 144, while logical result of a republican vic-Garfield's stands at 214. The people of tory. Georgia have not, in the eye of the law, tice by both sides—the one promising to voted at all; simply because eleven very cure election frauds in the south, and the are to come up to the capital one week mistakable threat of imperialism. But there is enough in the tendency which the report to show the great progress in have given road, and other sources of revenue. The nents of imperialism in the field of arschool population being 433,444, the engument; for every attack upon centralirollment being 996 697 and the average attendance 132,000, this appropriation literature of secession. The amount worsted. available this year is about $346,273, or about 80 cents a head on the school pop- with respect to the forged letter, a guilty ulation. This sum is ridiculously small for the maintenance of a public school at least three months in the year in every militia district of the state-and vet Commissioner Orr has succeeded in attaining such a result. Schools have been placed at the rate of eighty cents a head, within the reach of at least 200, 000 children who could not otherwise of the poverty of their parents. 226,627 of the poverty of their parents. 226,627 actually enjoyed this privilege in 1879; actually enjoyed this privilege in 1879; but justly adds, "I have yet to learn where a like amount of money has in any other state been made to accomplish equal results." Mr. Orr urges the legislature to increase the school fund by enforcing a more thorough collection of the poll tax, by increasing the liquor tax and by levying a dog tax.

By statistics of crime and illiteracy he proves that even a small property-tax would be in the last degree advisable. In this way he believes school lasting five months in each year maintained in every militia dis trict, without being in any sense a burden upon the people, but in every sense a lessing to the commonwealth. Georgia is certainly not too poor to educate her children. She certainly cannot afford to have during another generation 80,000 illiterate voters. She can afford to provide, as the new constitution directs, a thorough system of com.

democratic journals, covering a period of ten years, be diligently searched, the fact will clearly appear that Mr. Dana has repeated, word for word, a remark which has long been stereotyped in every 2 50 for one ye newspaper representing southern opin ion. For ten-nay, for fifteen-years the tendency of the republican party has een in the direction of centralism. I has not been a tendency merely, but an openly-avowed, a bold and an aggressive ovement in that direction. The question is, have Mr. Dana and republican of his class just discovered it? In the course of the article to which we have referred, Mr. Dana alludes with apparent surprise, to the Boutwell project for disestablishing the states; but it is notoriously the fact that this project is the logical outcome of the campaign which resulted in the election of Genera Garfield. It was, in one respect, th basis of the canvass. We regret to state these things; but it has heretofore been too much the habit of newspapers in thi section to endeavor to argue and explain away facts, instead of recognizing them We can advance what seems to us to be unanswerable arguments to show why the Boutwell project should not be th logical result of republican success, but none of these would touch or disturb the the selection of individual electors was fact that it is so. Prosecutors of offenders generally consider that when a motive for the commission of a crime has been clearly established, half their labor is accomplished. Now, it is well known that Tammany hall and its leaders were abundantly satisfied with the nomination of Hanceck. It is equally well known that Mr. Tilden was deeply chagrised over his defeat at Cincinnat; that chafed under his disappointment, and did not hesitate to express resentment over his prostrated future.

Herein are diselosed the motives which influenced each e-ment in the canvass. While Tammany set about to enhance the strength of the nomination, and to illustrate by vigorous work its faith in its success, Mr. Tilden was willing to see the prophecy of his friends made good in the success of the republican ticket. His method of 1871 and 1877 had been tried and proved.

The result shows that it was equally reliable in 1880, when the silent stiletto did effective work in 1880, when the silent stiletto did effective work in slavethering Hancock! It is a matter of absolute mathematical certainty that in twelve counties of this state, controlled by Tilden partisans, the emocratic vote of 1880 falls 22,000 behind the emocratic vote of 1880 falls 22,000 behind the democratic vote of 1876. If any doubts survive a knowledge of this fact, logic cannot remove them.

The small farmer who is breaking the old plantations into small holdings of from five to fitty acres is the "coming man" at the south. He not only represents the konor which labor has acquired, but exists as a necessity, because it has been found impossible to continue the wide old plantation and its shiftless, spendthrift habts. Ben Hill, of Georgia, is said to have spout $160,000 in a losing attempt 1 keep up the old regime, and many others without fat fees or outside assistance have become bankrupt in the same effort. Georgia added 21,820 to the number of her small farms between 1860 and 1870, and the change is now going on still more rapidly. Commissioner of Agriculture Henderson says that there are twice as many men in the state who own small farms as there were five or six years ago, and even the big places are divided and farmed out between different tenants. This growth of small proprietors is not confined to the negroes either, for the "poor white" has invaded the hill country with his cotton fields, and every year sees more of the great staple raised by white labor upon the few acres of its own. Tale is radical revolution in the south's method of doing business, and it insures the ultimate occupation of her thousands of untilled acres. This is a move in the right direction, and people at large. Populabenedial results, diversified industries tend to the collargement of special interests and revirity the otherwise dormant enterprise of the people. We trust that the legislature will speedily perfect a scheme for direct immigration from European countries to Georgia ports, and will liberally sustain Commissioner Fontaine in his efforts to bring to the state a class of 'people who will enter into ain Commissioner Fontaine in his efforts to br o the state a class of people who will enter it our industries and assist in their proper and elligent development.

There are two or three papers that are still trying to keep alive the spirit of dissension that pervaded the democratic party of Georgia prior to the late gubernatorial election. While most of the papers and people are trying to bury the unfortunate campaign and all its memories, these few seem to love to feed on strife; and they are continually harping on things which ought not to be recalled. The legislature—the real representatives of the people—have ignored former differences in their elections. How much better than the ugly, unpatriotic conduct of the papers referred to? The man who would perpetuate that strife is no friend of his state or his people.

—The London critics thought that the fencing scene between Edwin Booth and Laertes was too elaborate. But Edwin inherits a love of this scene. It is told of his father that he was very trying to other actors because of his carelessness in fighting on the stage. On one occasion, however, he met his match. He was playing Hamlet somewhere with a new Laertes, whom he warned before the performance that, as he got very excited in the fencing scene and often wounded his opponent, it therefore behoaved Laertes to be careful. Laertes thanked him for the hint, and observed that he, too, was very excitable, and whenever he felt himself wounded he always ran his opponent through the body. Booth contrived to keep his mind and his sword under control while fighting with that Laertes.

THE CALL FOR COAL

Editions Constitution: I have seen a good deal in your paper recently about a coal famine in Atlanta—and some have thought that the Dade coal company is at fault for not furnishing plenty of coal to the people of Atlanta. On this point I desire to remark that I have tried now for several years to introduce our coal into general use in this market as a grate coal, but as it does not kindle as easily and brun up as quick as the other coal usually brought here, it is unpopular; and during the last winter we were able to make very few sales. The result was we were obliged to turn our attention to other customers and we have made arrangements with railroads and iron mills and furnaces, the cotton factory, and other manufacturing enter prises for all we can supply. The larger portion of our productions goes to railroads. The next largest to rolling mills and iron furnaces which employ a very large number of people. It is absolutely necessary, therefore, that we keep them supplied, or the road will stop running and large numbers of employes of iron furnaces and rolling mills be turned out of employment. As the people of Atlanta will not buy our coal when there is plenty of other coal in the market, they must not expect us to forsake our regular customers to furnish it to them when those with whom they usually deal fail to do so.

Remarks are also made about the increased price of coal to manufacturers. Up to this time we have not increased a single cent a bushel on coal furnished any one. We are taking the panic-prices for our coal at the mines. But everything that we use has advanced so heavily within the last few months that we shall be compelled to increase the price. As the products of all the mills and all the industries we supply now bring them better prices than they formerly received, they can afford to pay more for their fuel. But we shall be very careful not to make our prices unreasonable.

You have taken the position that the Western and Atlantic railroad is unable to formerly received, they can afford to pay more for their fuel. But we shall be very careful not to make our prices unreasonable.

You have taken the position that the Western and Atlantic railroad is unable to supply the demand for coal and that this is a strong reason for building the Georgia Western. Now, while I favor the building of the Georgia Western. I must correct this error. The Western and Atlantic railroad, if the cars were furnshed, could haul double or three times as much coal as we now bring. The difficulty, therefore, is not in the capacity of the road to do the business, but it rests in the fact that the connecting roads have not cars to do their part of the business. The Western and Atlantic railroad has probably about double as many cars as any of its connections, while the connecting roads east of Atlanta have very few cars. They expect us to furnish cars to go first up to the corner of Georgia, or into the mountains of Tennessee after the coal, and then bring it down through Atlanta and send it nour cars to Griffin, Madic on, Macon, Augusta, and other points in Georgia. This we cannot undertake to do. If the people below Atlanta desire to use coal they must insist on the railroads below Atlanta furnishing cars to haul it in. If the cars are sent here we will pull them promptly to the mines, and when they are loaded bring them promptly back at a low rate of freight and send them through to their destination. Until the other railroads supply themselves with coal cars to do the business of their customers along their line, there will be frequent coal famines in the towns and cities interested. As our road terminates in Atlanta, we are under more obligations to supply our customers here; and we have been obliged, therefore, to give orders not to permit the Western and Atlantic railroad cars, until the press is over, to go below Atlanta. They now go to the mines and bring down coal for Atlanta and for the other places slong the line of our road. All cars furnished by the roads below at the other and promptly returned. This is all we can do.

I will be glad to see the Georgia Western extended to the coal fields, and to see the Coosa river cleaned out and made naviga able, and the coal fields opened up, so as to benefit Rome and all that section of the state but it is not at all necessary to the transportation of the supply of coal needed that either be done. What is needed is for the railroads at both ends of the Western and Atlantic railroad to furnish themselves amply with coal cars, and everybody will then be supplied with coal if the mines are able to supply it. There will be no lack of transportation. After we get the Georgia Western it cannot be done without the cars and connecting roads will have to furnish their part. Very respectfully,

JOSEPH E. BROWN. pany a ranta when we are asserted as a supplied with coal if the mines are able to supplied with coal if the mines are able to supply it. There will be no lack greary Stewart Machine in the above mentioned States, passes through our hands, and we have for years challenged them to meet us in law or equity, and yet they do not stewart it.

Hence their misseding circulars, which are intended enly to damage us. We shall prosecute all parties who wilfully misrepresent us here all parties who wilfully misrepresent us here.

It is with much pleasure that we learn that Miss Ada Gray, supported by Watthna's Fifth Avenue combination, will reappear in our city and give three night performances and one matinee on December 13, 14 and 15, for the benefit of the library.

We are requested by the officers of the library to say that Miss Gray has made an exceedingly liberal contract with the library association, and that they trust that all the members of the association will turn out and witness the performances, and thus benefit the library. The association is in debt and needs money, and it has resorted to this means to raise it.

The library will have no fair this year, and the deficiency in its treasury can only be met this way. We trust that the members and friends of the library will come out, show their appreciation of Miss Gray's kindness, get their money's worth in witnessing the acting of this great artist, and aid the library. The play will be duly advertised hereafter in this paper.

We learn that Dr. H. H. Cary, superintendent of fisheries for Georgia, left last night for Washington city for more carp for distribution in Georgia. When there before, anticipating that the demand would be beyond, the then visible supply, the left a requisition with United States Commissioner Spencer F. Baird for more. Since his return he has been notified that Georgia can have more. The carp excitement, is at fever heat. Many are constructing new ponds expressly for the carp. Not Quite a Coal Famine, W. S. Wilson & Bro. are always at the front in the coal trade. They have just received 25 car loads best free burning Anthrecite Coal, and 40 car loads good Oak Wood, and will have a lot of Coal Creek in to-day.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union meets at 3:00 p m. to-day at the Y. M. C. A. parlors, 49½ Whitehall street. The ladies and the ministers of the city are earnestly invited. The work for the whoter is to be organized before the holidays. All who cannot come, but wish to encourage the movement, will please send a postal to the above address, saying: "I will neither use nor offer for social entertainment any intoxicating liquors," and add name and address.

As Important Resolution.

A resolution was offered some time ago in the legislature, to the end that a certain sum of money be appropriated by the state to buy 1,500 volumes of Georgia reports, ranging in numbers from 21 to 29, inclusive. These reports are a part of the estate of the late B. Y. Martin, and were reported by that highly esteemed and beloved officer. There are perhaps a hundred counties in the state where these reports are needed, and if there should be any surplus numbers after supplying these counties, they could be exchanged for other state reports. We learn they are offered very cheap, and the legislature will do well to look carefully into the resolution. They belong to Mrs. Ella Cook, of Columbus, the widowed daughter of Mr. Martin.
